INTRODUCTION

Anton Felton was Bertrand Russell's last literary agent. Russell hired him in mid-1966 to prepare his archives for sale and to market the Autobiography. Anton Felton, C.A., (later) M.PHIL. (Oxon.), already had his own accounting firm, Felton and Partners, and thus he was retained as Russell's accountant and that of the Bertrand Russell Peace Foundation. In addition, Russell involved Felton in arrangements regarding much of his legal work, e.g. his last will.

Felton set up a separate company, Continuum 1 Ltd., to handle the literary affairs of Russell and his other literary client, Len Deighton. There is one slim file pertaining to Deighton here. Felton was named as one of Russell's three literary executors in Russell's last will and was responsible for Russell's estate until 1995, when the estate was wound up. Felton employed Barry Feinberg to do much of Continuum's work pertaining to Russell, and under his editorship Continuum published A Detailed Catalogue of the Archives of Bertrand Russell in 1967. Kenneth Blackwell was another employee until Archives 1 was sold to McMaster on 28 March 1968 and he joined McMaster. Felton himself led Continuum's major dealings, e.g. with McMaster over the Collected Papers. Christopher Farley, Russell's secretary from 1966 until his death in 1970, a director of the Bertrand Russell Peace Foundation and another of Russell's literary executors, worked closely with Felton and Feinberg on all matters concerning Russell and his estate. Since his retirement Anton Felton has published a work in an area of long-standing private interest: Jewish Carpets: a History and Guide (1997).

The Felton Papers were purchased from Anton Felton in August 1998 and given the Recent Acquisition number 1,343. They are located in Cabinet 5, boxes 5.59–68. Further accruals are not expected. The papers arrived in disarray. The only series containing files in their original order are the Estate Accounting series and two files in the Feinberg series. Order had to be imposed on the other files, and there are still overlapping areas of concern among the files. For this reason cross-references are supplied. Because of the multi-topic nature of Russell's business, it must be emphasized that some following of dated threads is necessary to find all the letters on a given topic.

Most files contain correspondence. Only Russell's letters and a few others are noted individually (and are yet to be catalogued in BRACERS, although the BRA card catalogue has been updated). The standard abbreviation for "Edith Russell " is "ER", the Bertrand Russell Peace Foundation is "BRPF", and the International War Crimes Tribunal is "IWCT". Although there are files designated as being the main sites of Felton or Feinberg's correspondence with Russell, Russell's correspondence with them is found throughout the archive. Morever, Farley's letters until 1970 often convey Russell's decisions or points of views in place of letters directly from him. There are 98 letters to Russell and 60 from him in his last years.

Dear Mr. Felton,

The Archives

I am writing to confirm my satisfaction with the various steps taken in preparation for the sale of the archives.

I was pleased to see a copy of the letter to you from Professor Ready dated March 13, and feel confident that under him the archives would be well cared for and put to good use.

It might be helpful if you were to assure Professor Ready that, for our part, we should all hope to offer him every future co-operation.

I look forward to hearing from you further about progress. If you would care to visit us here briefly, with or without Professor Ready, you would be most welcome.

With kind regards,

Yours sincerely,

Bertrand Russell
